WEEK'S TRADING HAD UNCERTAIN COURSE

Foreign and Domestic Conditions Influence Market to Equal Degree.

New York, Feb. 9 .- The uncertain rse of this week's stock market influenced in equal degree by forign and domestic conditions. Dealdinarily professional, because of the stivity of pools in special issues. Peace rumors of the previous week ore superseded by developments t the war. The tone of industrial hares measured the changing phases of transportation and fuel conditions Progress of federal legislation, dealpered by the attitude of the railroad brotherhoods. Statements of earn-ings were more favorable and annual reports of industrial and equipment panies were in keeping with huge oration. No material alteration oc-arred in the foreign exchange mar-cet, aside from moderate improve-in rubles and the weakness of tances to Italy. Local banks relaxed their rates for nort-time loans, but the scarcity of fonds was gain noteworthy. Call money hardened with the approach of the week-end, all such accommoda-tions holding over until next Wednes-

LEADERS STEADY

New York, Feb. 3.—Dealings during the brief session of the stock market were mainly in the nature of a settlement of contracts over the holidays. The tong was irregular at the outset, specialties alone showing substantial gains. Later the general list improved, shippings, metals and oils coming forward. Rails, except coalers, were under moderate pressure and United States Steel moved in a narrow area. The closing was firm. Sales approximated 250,000 shares. Liberty bonds, first 4s 22.25 and second 4s at 95.10, made new low records, the 3½s selling at 37.70 to 37.64.

Seven-year-old Dorothy Tennant oungest dog fancier and keenest judge of good canines in the West, has been (Herbert Corey, in Atlanta Journal.) activities of the German woman, those Berne, Switzerland.—Much has been who have recently visited Germany said of the manner in which the Geral tell me there are practically no idle man empire has been converted into a great war machine. That this is literally true can only be comprehended in its entirety by those who are now living in Germany. Even across the border, however, it is possible to discern this much:

Not one wheel is turning in Germany today unless that wheel is directly or indirectly engaged in the furtherance of the war.

The munitions works and the factories in which German women are expected to enroll, together with those men who by reason of age or disabilities are exempt from service with the military or the affiliated lines. The needs of the hospital and the various military and civilian rectly or indirectly engaged in the furtherance of the war.

rectly or indirectly engaged in the fur-therance of the war.

New York, Feb. 3.—There was considerable scattering liquidation at the opening of the cotton market today. First prices were 7 to 12 points lower, and active months sold about 10 to 17 points under last night's closing after the call. The failure of Washington advices to confirm yesterday's report that cotton was to be dropped from the price-fixing bill probably accounted for some of this selling, while there was also realisting for over the holidays. The decline was checked by the bullish average of southern spot news, however, and after selling at 25.70c May railled to 29.77c on covering and trade buying. A better export demand was reported, and the advance was also encouraged by the improvement shown in transportation facilities and the fuel situation.

Rallies followed the early decline, but met renewed liquidation for over the three-day adjournment, with the market closing steady at a net decline of 4 to 15 points. After selling at 29.70c, May rallied to 29.87c and closed at 29.71c. Rumors of rains in Texas were not confirmed. This statement may be challenged as an exaggeration. It happens, how-ever, to be susceptible of proof. Articles manufactured for popular use must necessarily be transported from place of origin to place of consump-tion. It is not every German who is tion. It is not every German who is so favorably situated that when he needs something for office or house he can drop into a factory and buy it over the counter. Very well, then. If there were any considerable manufacturing in Germany, outside of war manufacture, the fact would show in the freights. the freights.

There are no rreights except war freights in Germany.

New Orleans, Feb. 2.—Cotton opened higher on this market today, standing 1 to 6 points up on the first call, as the result of claims that cotton would not be included in price-fixing legislation now before congress. Light rains in Texas encouraged selling, and at the end of the first half-bour trading months were 4 to 6 points under yesterday's close. tarized, as is well known. For a time a pretense of continuing the general business of the first two years of the war was kept up. The freights were listed under three heads:

Contributory war freight. Freight of the usual civilian char-close.

The larger trading in the spot department caused buying which put prices 6 to 9 points over yesterday's close, but toward the close the market was off again to a net decline of 2 points. War freight was given preference, of course. Next to it came the "contrib-utory" freight, such as raw materials for munitions and food for the people. NEW ORLEANS COTTON FUTURES In this connection, civilians are con-sidered as "war material." Unless they are kept in condition to work, the OPENING.

Every German in the United States today is due in the German army. The Germans in the United States with be forgiven—or many of them will—because of the impossibility of getting to Germany across a well-guarded sea. But here in Switzerland no such protection avails them. I have been told of cases in which men have been mulcted of all they possessed—of well-to-do men who have been reduced to penury because they refused to so back to Germany to do their military service. The empire can only reach property actually located in Germany, of sourse. But these men can never return to Germany except upon a proper and well-paid-for permission. It is quite clearly understood that one of the sources of revenue Germany hopes to tap after the war is the fat pocketbook of the Germans resident in the United States and who have been paid good wages or made rich profits during the period of the war. They must pay if ever they hope to go back.

Those against whose names offenses against German civil law stand her thorough initial preparation in the total available to the national need. The consequence is that just what food is absolutely needed is manufactured, and just what cloth may not be done without. The coal supply promised for this winter is less than one-half that needed against normal demands, and that after all electric signs and show-window lighting has been prohibited. Germany has plenty of coal, but she lacks men to work it.

In summing up, it may be said without exaggeration that every ounce of energy possessed by Germany today is directed toward the one purpose—that of fighting out the war.

All the external things which make life pleasant have been cast aside. The whole nation is fighting in a sense plant of the sources of revenue Germany hopes to tap after the war is the fat pocketbook of the Germany resident in the United States and who have been paid good wages or made rich profits during the period of the war.

Woman Problem Will Be Serious. With every valid man at work for the war or fighting, there remain other Germans to be accounted for. There are the women, for example. Women are working at almost every sort of the in Germany today, from cleaning the future in a fashion that cannot be the future in a fashion that cannot be the future in a fashion that cannot be are working at almost every sort of job in Germany today, from cleaning streets to running lathes in shell factories, The "woman problem" is one of the innumerable problems of after quit. the war which even now are growing permanent wrinkles in the foreheads of thoughtful Germans. The munitions works and the factories which must continue at work to supply the needs of the civilian popula-tion, and in which the male staff of former times has been largely re-placed by a feminine staff, account for hundreds of thousands more. Stores, hotels, tram lines, dlning cars, railway stations, farms and the like are served by women now. The German woman whose time is not taken up in one of these ways, or by the cares of her household, is expected to enroll as a voluntary worker, to be as-

which the voluntary civil service has taken up the supply of males outside the mobilized lines," a friend told me, "I can cite my own experience. I selected a one-legged office boy because he promised permanency. But after a time he was called to sit at a factory door to cheer the women in and out morning and evening. A Pole used to give me a German lesson every morning. He was a little, weazened chap, ing. He was a little, weazened chap, left Germany he was carrying letters four times a day. I tried to find a clerk to fill a temporary need, but I was unable to find one who had not some 'voluntary civil service' interest. I fancy it would have been quite un-comfortable for any one to try to evade this so-called voluntary but really drafted service."

No more striking example of the manner in which all labor, men and women alike, has been directed into war or contributory to the war chan-nels can be found than the manner in which the Tiergarten in Berlin has been neglected. This pretty park is the pride of the kaiser's heart and the Sunday afternoon promenade of every good Berlin burgher. The kaiser has even equipped it with one of the finest lines of white marble ancestors ever put on exhibition. There is a double row of dublous Hohenzollerns, the dates of whose births and achievedates of whose births and achievements reach back into a safe antiquity, and whose stone presentments are remarkable for the lack of artistic qualities. Even the Berliners laugh at the

This moth is not a stranger to Eu-rope or Berlin or the Tiergarten. The conservators of the park knew per-fectly well what would happen if the military services, such as the railroads or the munition factories. A certain proportion of these men are permanently exempted because of physical unfitness. Others are temporarily exempted. M. Pichon said the ministers had expressed a preference that the monument be erected at one of the points on the battlefield which have been selected in connection with the government's plan for special designations of certain sites to commemorate the battle.

RAILROADS JUST OPENING ROUTES TO CINCINNATI

While the railroad situation is clear-ing somewhat, it still wears a certain gravity. The roads into Cincinnati, a main distributing point for the south, are blocked with from five to six inches of mud, over which is a cap of ice three or four inches thick.

An official of one of the railroads stated that he understood the road would be open today sufficiently to allow trains to enter the Union depot at Cincinnati. This has been closed for several days, but trains have always been able to proceed as far as Eighth street. One of the roads into that city still maintains a complete embargo on all freight of any description what-
